

IN THE
United States Court of Appeals
FOR THE FIFTH CIRCUIT

E. TOOM,

Appellant,

vs.

E. WESTOVER,

Appellee.

E. TOOM and FLORENCE M. TOOM,

Appellants,

vs.

WESTOVER,

Appellee.

APPELLANTS' OPENING BRIEF.

FISK, ROLSTON, LEVINTHAL & KENT,
6253 Hollywood Boulevard,
Los Angeles 28, California,

LEO V. SILVERSTEIN,
837 Van Nuys Building,
Los Angeles 14, California,

SCHWARTZ, GALE & BLOOM,
6253 Hollywood Boulevard,
Los Angeles 28, California,

TOPICAL INDEX

	PAGE
.....	1
of the case.....	2
presented	3
of facts.....	4
tions of errors.....	11
of argument.....	16
.....	20

I.

no evidence to support the findings of fact from was drawn the trial court's conclusion that the plain- not form and carry on the business in question as nership within the meaning of the Internal Revenue	20
the pertinent findings of fact are not supported by the vidence	20
1) Finding 27	20
2) Finding 16	22
3) Findings 19 and 21.....	22
4) Finding 20	27
5) Findings 22 and 23.....	28
6) Finding 24	30
7) Finding 25	34
8) Finding 26	37

II.

A proper application of the principles, governing the determination of the validity of a partnership, to the facts established by the record, indicates that the conclusion of the trial court as to the validity of the partnership is correct as to law

A. The following principles of law govern the determination of the validity of the partnership in the case

- (1) If a partnership exists under commercial law, it exists for tax purposes—the tests are the same. The ultimate question is whether the partnership was a sham or whether there was a real partnership to carry on the business as a partnership.....
- (2) There is no different test to be applied in determining the validity of a family partnership than is applied in testing the validity of a partnership with strangers
- (3) There is no distinction between limited partnerships and general partnerships for income tax purposes, and limited partnerships are recognized for tax purposes
- (4) A partnership is an organization for the distribution of income to which each partner contributes one or both of the ingredients of income—capital or services
- (5) Neither original capital nor services are necessary requisites to the validity of a partnership, the test being the reality of intent to carry on the business as a partnership.....

7) The desire to reduce taxes will not defeat the validity of a transaction so long as the transaction is bona fide and is not entered into for the sole motive of saving taxes..... 48

other family partnership cases..... 48

the application of the above stated principles of law to the following circumstances in this case which are without contradiction in the record, compels the conclusion in this case that there was a real intent to carry on the business as a partnership..... 51

III.

clerical error in omitting the irrevocability clause from trust instruments did not result in causing income from partnership to be attributed to Mr. and Mrs. Toor or by the disregard of the fiscal year of the partnership for tax purposes..... 55

the facts 55

the intention of the parties always was that the trusts were irrevocable and the trusts should be viewed accordingly. The reformatory instruments of December 14, 1943, in any event, should be considered to be retroactive to the date when the clerical error occurred..... 57

even if not given retroactive effect, the correction of the clerical error was accomplished on December 14, 1943, rather than on January 13, 1944, as found by the court. This correction was accomplished within the calendar taxable year of Mr. and Mrs. Toor and of

D. The same government accepted the donee's return shortly after the creation of the trusts on an irre- basis; the same government, in renegotiating w- tracts, demanded and received some $60,000 base- a recognition of the partnership and its fisc- which could not otherwise have been assessed- lected

Conclusion

Appendix :

Corporations Code of California, Sec. 15509.....

Corporations Code of California, Sec. 15510.....

Corporations Code of California, Sec. 15523.....

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES CITED

CASES	PAGE
v. United States, 240 U. S. 531, 36 S. Ct. 438, 60
78.....	58
v. Commissioner, 143 F. 2d 700.....	24, 48
Jones Syndicate v. Commissioner, 23 F. 2d 833.....	58
Züibeck, 84 Cal. App. 2d 483, 191 P. 2d 67.....	60
v. Commissioner, 79 F. 2d 14.....	40, 48
ner v. Culbertson, 337 U. S. 733, 69 S. Ct. 1210, 93
1659.....	37, 38, 39, 45, 46, 47, 48
ner v. Tower, 327 U. S. 280, 66 S. Ct. 532, 91 L.
164 A. L. R. 1135.....	26, 38, 45, 46, 50
. Thomas, 34 A. F. T. R. 1631.....	24
v. United States (cited in Prentice-Hall, par. 72,515)
.....	34, 39
nal & Irrigation Co. v. Hart, 152 Cal. 453, 92 Pac.
.....	58
Commissioner, 153 F. 2d 408.....	57, 60
v. Arnold, 185 F. 2d 913.....	45 er v. Commissioner, 177 F. 2d 990.....
.....	24, 33, 34, 35, 39, 47, 48
Commissioner, 175 F. 2d 444; rev'g 10 T. C. 818....	34, 39
ommissioner, 4 T. C. 878; aff'd 152 F. 2d 722.....	63
n-Redondo Company v. Commissioner, 36 B. T. A.
.....	64
Smith, 183 F. 2d 938.....	33, 39, 47
Commissioner, 164 F. 2d 380.....	21
hn A., v. Commissioner, 13 T. C. 1020.....	33, 39
Curry, 88 Fed. Supp. 967.....	40
hart W. v. Commissioner, 35 B. T. A. 602.....	64

STATUTES

Civil Code, Sec. 1640
Code of Civil Procedure, Sec. 1856.....
Corporations Code, Sec. 15507.....
Corporations Code, Sec. 15509.....
Corporations Code, Sec. 15510.....
Internal Revenue Code, Sec. 166
Internal Revenue Code, Sec. 183
Internal Revenue Code, Sec. 188.....
Internal Revenue Code, Sec. 3772.....
Regulations 111, Sec. 29.3797.5.....
United States Code Annotated, Title 28, Sec. 1291.....
United States Code Annotated, Title 28, Sec. 1340.....

TEXTBOOKS

45 American Jurisprudence, p. 591.....
45 American Jurisprudence, p. 601.....
45 American Jurisprudence, p. 637.....
44 American Law Reports, p. 119.....
22 California Jurisprudence, p. 709.....
22 California Jurisprudence, p. 715.....
6 Merten's Law of Federal Taxation, p. 410.....

IN THE
United States Court of Appeals
FOR THE NINTH CIRCUIT

E. TOOR,

Appellant,

vs.

WESTOVER,

Appellee.

E. TOOR and FLORENCE D. TOOR,

Appellants,

vs.

WESTOVER,

Appellee.

APPELLANTS' OPENING BRIEF.

Jurisdiction.

Appeal involves federal income taxes for the calendar years 1943, 1944 and 1945 of appellants Herbert E. Toor and Florence D. Toor. The taxes in dispute with Mr. Toor for those years, amounting to a total of $99.29, were paid by Mr. Toor on or about November 15, 1948, under protest after additional assessments had been made by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue [R. 7, 9, 14, 17, 22, 25]. Claims for refund were for the recovery of the alleged overpayment [Substantially similar assessments were made to by Florence D. Toor the wife of Herbert E. Toor. A similar action was brought against the Collector of Internal Revenue on account thereof by Herbert E. Toor and Florence D. Toor. The two cases involved similar issues and were consolidated for hearing before the District Court. It was stipulated between counsel that the decision on appeal in the first case, bearing District Court No. 10461-Y should be applied to and be decisive of the appeal from the second case bearing District Court No. 10462-Y (p. 515). Jurisdiction was conferred on the District Court by 28 U. S. C. A. Sec. 1340. Judgments were entered on January 11, 1951 (pp. 80-81). Motions for a new trial were duly filed by plaintiffs on January 22, 1951, and orders denying such motions were entered on February 6, 1951. On April 5, 1951, notices of appeal were filed [R. 82-84] pursuant to the provisions of U. S. C. A. Sec. 1291.

Statement of the Case.

The complaints in the two actions sought the recovery of the amounts paid with interest, as the result of erroneous assessments on the income tax of plaintiffs Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Toor, for the years 1943, 1944 and 1945. The assessments were based first upon the asserted existence of a partnership known as Furniture Guild of California, organized on November 20, 1942, and in which Mr. Toor was general partner, and the Beverly Hills National Bank and Trust Company as trustee of two trusts, the partnership was not a valid partnership for tax purposes.

s was the disallowance of certain deductions
Mr. and Mrs. Toor. However, there is no ap-this aspect of the case.

Mrs. Toor were divorced in 1948, and as part property settlement agreement, it was provided that would be entitled to receive and retain as his property any income tax refunds, credits or tax
for the years in question [R. 191].

o cases were consolidated for trial and the case
the tax paid by Mrs. Toor (Case No. 10462-Y) tted and decided on the basis of the testimony
e involving the tax paid by Mr. Toor (Case No.
[R. 499]. For purposes of argument, we will ases as one.

l court ruled that the partnership was not valid urposes and that the Commissioner of Internal properly assessed to the plaintiffs the entire ine business upon a community basis.

Presented:

ether the limited partnership should have been for tax purposes for the years 1943, 1944 and

second question is presented in the event the stion is answered in the affirmative. The trustrustee intended to create an irrevocable trust.
by reason of a clerical error, the irrevocability
s inadvertently omitted from the original trust
ts creating the trusts for the children on No-1942. The parties confirmed this original in-

of correction of the error, and if the later date whether the income taxes of Mr. and Mrs. Toor affected. This question arising as a result of the error, was not ruled upon by the trial court since it answered the first question in the negative.

Statement of Facts.

(Page references are to the printed record.)

The appellants, Herbert E. Toor and Florence Toor, were married in 1926. Domestic difficulties between them developed prior to 1941, and in that year they ceased to live together as husband and wife although they continued to live under the same roof [R. 96]. Their difficulties culminated in a divorce in 1948 [R. 95]. The source of difficulty was the lack of sense of value for business or money on the part of Mrs. Toor and the thriftless manner in which she disposed of money [R. 96].

Because of this difficulty, Mr. Toor in 1941, sought to make provision for their two children, Barbara and Bruce Alan Toor by changing at least one life insurance policy to make them direct beneficiaries, and by purchasing United States bonds monthly in their name [R. 96]. In early 1942, the situation had crystallized to the point where Mr. Toor discussed with his attorney, Max Fink, the means by which to get some of the community property out of the control of Mrs. Toor and himself so that the children would have some measure of protection in the event the domestic situation erupted, or in the event something happened to Mr. Toor. A trust was the natural result [R. 98, 206, 207].

so as not to expire until after the children were
age and would come into the property themselves

By the terms of the trust agreements all funds
accumulated in the trusts and there could be no
until the trusts terminated, which was after en became of age. In discussing the trusts, it suggested that if a separate trustee were ape might be able to invest those funds in Mr.
business which was then conducted as a sole pro-
under the name of Furniture Guild of Cali-[R. 98].

was adopted for the setting up of a trust for

Mr. Fink talked to the Beverly Hills National Trust Company, and that bank agreed to accept eship. Arrangements were also made for the
of a limited partnership of the furniture busi-
the bank, as trustee of both trusts, being the rtner [R. 104]. Prior thereto, Mr. Toor had acquainted with the bank or its officers except by
; it was not he who suggested the bank as [R. 286-287].

he program had been arrived at and tentative ents made with the bank, Mr. Fink and Mr. Toor with a tax consultant and certified public ac-concerning the tax aspects thereof [R. 103-104].

of the trust agreements were drawn in July or f 1942 [R. 298]. After negotiations with the some revisions in the trusts resulting therefrom, trust papers were drawn. These were signed on 20, 1942 by the bank and by Mr. and Mrs.

trusts. $10,500 went into each of the two trusts. The first child, Barbara, was then about twelve years old. The other, Bruce, was then about eight years old. On the same day, Mr. Toor and the Beverly Hills National Bank and Trust Company executed articles of limited partnership and a verified sworn certificate of limited partnership, which documents were first drafted some time before. The original drafts of the trust agreements were [R. 115-127, 299, 232].

In connection with the trusts, the bank in its capacity as trustee, filed donee gift tax returns with both the Federal government and with the State of California on the basis of irrevocable trusts [R. 332-334].

The certificate of limited partnership was filed and recorded, a certificate of fictitious firm name published in commercial agencies and the bank with which the partnership had its account were notified, insurance policies changed, premises for the operation of the business were leased to the partnership by Mr. Toor, employment contracts were executed by the partnership, partnerships were set up, and in general, all acts connected with the setting up of the business as a partnership were [R. 137-160].

In accordance with the partnership agreement, the bank transmitted to the new partnership the sum of $10,500 as a capital investment for each of the two trusts. Mr. Toor conveyed to the partnership by bill of sale the real estate.

each contributed $10,000, making a total capital for the partnership of $60,000.

Under the terms of the limited partnership agreement, Mr. Toor was to receive reasonable compensation for his services, and, after consultation with the bank, was fixed at $10,000 gross sales [R. 290, 338, 364, 367]. It was also provided by the partnership agreement that profits should be shared and distributed in proportion to the investments made by each to each of the trusts, and four-sixths to Mr. Toor and one-sixth to Mr. Toor. That Mr. Toor should have full charge and control of the partnership business and have full power to execute all acts necessary or convenient with respect to the partnership business that a general partner in a limited partnership could do in accordance with the laws relating to limited partnerships. The term of the partnership was to continue until June, 1955; Mr. Toor had the power to terminate the partnership by giving thirty days' prior written notice, in which event he could purchase the interests of the other partners at book value. Assets had also been valued at book value for the purpose of commencing the partnership. Proper partnership books were to be kept, and statements were to be prepared annually or more frequently [30-40].

The partnership agreement also provided that the partnership should be retroactive to September 1, 1942. The reason for this was that it was originally contemplated that the partnership should be formed at that time.

of the partnership was not accomplished until November 20, 1942. This retroactive feature in the agreement was subsequently eliminated by an amendment to the agreement so that the agreement and action thereunder would conform to the true situation, and that income earned by the partnership took effect, would not be credited to the partnership [R. 315-316, 388, 405-407].

All business thereafter was conducted in the name of the partnership [R. 169-172]. The partnership had a fiscal year ending June 30th of each year. Books were set up and kept on a partnership basis [R. 388-396]. The books accurately and honestly reflected every business action during the life of the partnership; entries were adequate to disclose the relationship of the partnership; all transactions in the books were in the name of the partnership; there were no subterfuges or kickbacks of any kind [R. 388-396, 443-445]. The terms of the limited partnership agreement were in all respects adhered to. Mr. Toor received a reasonable compensation for his services, computed upon three percent of gross sales, which compensation was deducted before the computation of net profits [R. 162, 338].

Mr. Toor managed the business as a general partner. Accountings were rendered to the bank [R. 191-192]. Profits were divided and substantial distributions were made in proportion to the investments [R. 339-353].

Toor, and $21,443.60 to each trust. On or about 10, 1944, $60,000 of the profits were distributed, $40,000 to Mr. Toor and $10,000 to each of the trusts [R. 339, 343, 344].

For the year ending June 30, 1944, the total net profits of the partnership, after deducting Mr. Toor's salary, were $7,380.38, of which sum $91,586.92 was credited to Mr. Toor's capital account, and the sum of $22,896.37 was credited to the capital account of each of the trusts. On February 1, 1945, $60,000 was distributed, $40,000 to Mr. Toor and $10,000 to each of the trusts [R. 346-347].

For the year ending June 30, 1945, the total net profits of the business after deducting Mr. Toor's salary were $16,650.65, of which $66,932.43 was credited to the capital account of Mr. Toor, and $16,733.11 to the capital account of each of the trusts. On September 6, 1945, $60,000 was distributed, of which $20,000 was distributed to Mr. Toor and $5,000 to each of the trusts [R. 348-350].

The funds in the hands of the trustee were invested from time to time in accordance with the trustee's discretion [R. 344-350].

For the year ending June 30, 1946, the partnership distributed securities having a value to the partnership of $211,724.03, of which $16,650.61 worth of securities were distributed to Mr. Toor and $36,480.21 worth of securities to each of the trusts [R. 351-353].

666.66 worth of assets were distributed to Mr. Toor. $16,666.67 worth of assets was distributed to each of the trusts. Concurrently therewith a corporation was organized to carry on the business of the partnership in the name of "Furniture Guild of California, Inc.," capital stock $100,000 and each of the partners contributed to the corporation their respective shares of the assets of the partnership, other than the securities distributed to the trusts as stock in the corporation. The balance of the assets of the partnership, consisting of cash, was distributed to each of the partners in proportion on or about July 1, 1943, at which time the partnership was terminated [R. 352, 389-395; Ex. 25].

At the time of trial Mr. Toor's son-in-law was associated in the business and Mr. Toor stated that he had organized the corporation and thought the partnership arrangement would bring his son into the business [R. 190, 480-481].

The government has disregarded the partnership for its fiscal years for income tax purposes, and has assessed an additional tax liability against Herbert E. Toor and Florence D. Toor based upon the portion of the proceeds of the partnership received by the two trusts for the years ending June 30, 1943, June 30, 1944 and June 30, 1945 respectively.

The facts relating to the issue of the effect of the error in the execution of the original trust in

CATIONS OF ERRORS:

that the Court erred in concluding that the parties orm and carry on as a partnership, within the
of the Internal Revenue Code, the business
the Furniture Guild of California [Conclusions to 6].

ne Court erred in making the following findings

ne plaintiff, as manager of the marital community entered into two trust agreements [Finding is was erroneous in that the trust agreements ered into by Mr. and Mrs. Toor and funds con-trust were conveyed by both.

ne Bank as trustee executed articles of limited ip for sharing in profits [Finding 11]. This neous because the partnership was created for the
of the business and contemplated, among other
e sharing of profits.

ne trustee was authorized to invest only in the
of which plaintiff was a partner or principal er, or in government bonds [Finding 13]. This neous in that the trustee also had the power, in discretion, to invest part or all of the funds in e securities of the United States or the instrues or states thereof.

was erroneous in that written confirmation of the intention to create irrevocable trusts was executed on December 14, 1943.

(e) Under the articles of partnership, plaintiff had full charge and control of the entire business, full power and authority to do any act necessary or convenient with respect to the business [Finding 16]. This was erroneous in that the control, power and authority was limited to partnership purposes only, and was limited by the express terms of the partnership agreement and by the provisions of law regarding limited partnerships.

(f) The creation of the limited partnership in 1943 did not in any way change the control which the plaintiff exercised over the business [Finding 19]. This was erroneous in that the financial structure and operation of the business was changed and plaintiff's control was limited by the provisions of the written partnership agreement, by the provisions of law regarding limited partnerships and by his fiduciary duties as a general partner.

(g) The creation and the termination of the partnership subsequent to the taxable years were merely the acts of the plaintiff [Finding 20]. This was erroneous in that the partnership was created and terminated in accordance with the voluntary agreement and independent action of the parties.

of plaintiff's property on which the business
ed on—in brief, the determination of all matters
judgment or management, control of the prop-disposition and allocation of funds derived from ess, including amounts to be allocated each year,
exclusively under the domination of the plaintiff
all intents and purposes, the creation of the part-made no change whatever in the manner in which ess had been conducted before [Finding 21].
erroneous in that the control by the plaintiff was
than that of a general partner in a limited part-
and was exercised under the limitations and reof the written agreement and of the law, and fiduciary capacity as a general partner, as dis-
d from control for his own benefit only.

o instance appears where the Bank or its repre-
s used independent judgment, and the trustee ex-
one of the rights of partnership, even by way of Finding 22]. This was erroneous in that the use independent judgment, did enforce the writ-ement, did recognize all of its rights as limited and, under the circumstances, acted in a manner
ould be expected of a limited partner in a partomposed of strangers.

ue trustee did not exercise dominion and control
trust corpus in the business and did not influence

in the business, and influenced the conduct of the ship, and enforced the partnership agreement.

(k) To the extent that capital played a part in the earnings of the business, the plaintiff must still be shown to have created the entire business income because of his control over corpus and income and his retention of many of the attributes of ownership of the trust in his business [Finding 24]. This was erroneous in that the control of plaintiff was that of a general partner in a limited partnership and the earnings of the trust were created by the business conducted as a partnership. Plaintiff received a salary as compensation for his services and the bank did contribute capital in proportion to his participation in profits to a business which required substantial risk capital for its operation.

(l) The entire effect of the establishment of the partnership was merely to permit the children of the plaintiff to receive a certain amount of the income when the plaintiff determined that the income was subject to distribution rather than diversion to other business determined by the plaintiff [Finding 25]. This was erroneous in that the income of the partnership went into the trusts; all distributions were required by agreement to be and were proportional to the ownership of the business; the discretion to distribute a portion of the income in the business was not an arbitrary discretion and was a normal and necessary discretion.

the plaintiff and the trustee did not act with a purpose in setting up the limited partnership [26]. This was erroneous in that there was a purpose" as that phrase is properly used; there was no knowledge of intent and a complete absence of sham or fraud.

The plaintiff and the trustee did not in good faith join together in the present conduct of the business [Finding 27]. This was erroneous in that the circumstances and evidence both direct and indirect showed a good faith intent to join in the conduct of the business as limited partners.

That the Court erred in failing to find on all the factual issues presented. These factual issues are set forth under Point IB of the Argument.

That the Court erred in ruling, in effect, that the tests for determining the validity of a family partnership for tax purposes are different from the tests for determining the validity of such a partnership in ordinary cases involving taxes.

The Court erred in ruling in effect, that a family partnership is not valid for tax purposes if no capital or services are contributed by the limited partners.

SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT.

I. There is no evidence to support the finding on which the Court's conclusion as to the invalid partnership is based.

A. The pertinent findings of fact are supported by the evidence.

(1) Both direct and indirect evidence good faith intention to form and carry on business as a partnership.

(2) The control of the business given in the agreement was not complete for all purposes it was for partnership purposes only, was by law, and by the agreement, and were the normally granted a general partner in a limited partnership.

(3) The control exercised by Mr. T changed by the creation of the partnership from the complete freedom of the individual partner to the fiduciary position of general partner with limitations and responsibilities imposed by agreement and by law. This fiduciary obligation recognized and respected at all times by the partners in their conduct.

(4) The partnership was both created and operated by voluntary agreement of the parties at arm's length and using independent judgment.

(5) The bank as trustee did use independent judgment, availed itself of its rights as a limited partner.

available to it that it was called upon to exercise, and to act as would be expected under the circumstances if this were a limited partnership with partners.

Mr. Toor's personal services and skill played an important role in the earning of the business income, but he received a salary for such services which was not unreasonable. The capital and organization of the business itself was the major factor in the earning of the income of the business, and as one of the owners of that capital and organization, each partner's trusts must be considered to have earned one-third of the income of the business over and above Mr. Toor's salary.

The provision that Mr. Toor might determine the times and amounts of distribution of income, did not give him an arbitrary discretion, but one that had to be exercised reasonably for the benefit of the business. It was a common, normal and accepted function of a partner's management to determine when and how much of the income of the business is to be distributed.

The words "business purpose" should not be interpreted to require a benefit to the business. As early interpreted, there was a business purpose in the formation of the partnership; there was no sham or subterfuge or paper organization; there was an intent to form a partnership and carry on the business as such.

The Court failed to find on all the material is-

Court's ruling that the partnership was invalid for tax purposes, is contrary to law.

A. Principles of law applicable:

(1) If a partnership exists under common law, it exists for tax purposes—the tests are the same.

(2) No different test is applied in determining the validity of a family partnership than in the case of strangers.

(3) No distinction is made between general and limited partnerships for the tax question when the same is involved.

(4) A partnership is an organization for the production of income to which each partner contributes capital or services.

(5) Neither original capital nor service is required for the validity of the partnership.

(6) The desire of a parent to provide for his children is a legitimate motive for creating family partnerships.

(7) The desire to reduce taxes will not affect the validity of a transaction if that is not the sole motive and if the transaction is bona fide.

B. Other family partnership cases.

C. An evaluation of the facts of the instant case in the light of the above stated principles.

the clerical error in omitting the irrevocability from the original trust instruments did not result in income from the partnership to be attributed to Mr. and Mrs. Toor or justify the disregard of the partnership for tax purposes.

The facts indicate a true intent that the trusts be irrevocable from the beginning, to wit: November 1942, and that the documents originally signed by Mr. and Mrs. Toor did not contain the irrevocability clause all of the parties believed that they did contain.

The instruments executed December 14, 1943 confirmed the original intention of the parties that the trusts be irrevocable and, in any event, should be considered to be retroactive to the date the error occurred.

Even if the reformatory instruments were not retroactive in effect, the clerical error was corrected before the close of the taxable year of the trusts and Mr. and Mrs. Toor, and the income from the partnership accruing to the trusts in that year is not attributable to Mr. and Mrs. Toor.

The same government accepted the donee's reformation made shortly after the creation of the trusts, on an irrevocable basis; the same government, in renewing war contracts, demanded and received some

ARGUMENT.

I.

There Is No Evidence to Support the Finding of Fact From Which Was Drawn the Trial Court's Conclusion That the Plaintiff Did Not Intend to Carry on the Business in Question as a Partnership Within the Meaning of the Internal Revenue Code.

A. THE PERTINENT FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS SUPPORTED BY THE EVIDENCE.

(1) Finding 27.

"The plaintiff and the trustee did not in good faith intend to join together in the present conduct of the business enterprise."

This finding itself is a conclusion drawn by the trial court from the other findings of fact [Findings 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100, 101, 102, 103, 104, 105, 106, 107, 108, 109, 110, 111, 112, 113, 114, 115, 116, 117, 118, 119, 120, 121, 122, 123, 124, 125, 126, 127, 128, 129, 130, 131, 132, 133, 134, 135, 136, 137, 138, 139, 140, 141, 142, 143, 144, 145, 146, 147, 148, 149, 150, 151, 152, 153, 154, 155, 156, 157, 158, 159, 160, 161, 162, 163, 164, 165, 166, 167, 168, 169, 170, 171, 172, 173, 174, 175, 176, 177, 178, 179, 180, 181, 182, 183, 184, 185, 186, 187, 188, 189, 190, 191, 192, 193, 194, 195, 196, 197, 198, 199, 200, 201, 202, 203, 204, 205, 206, 207, 208, 209, 210, 211, 212, 213, 214, 215, 216, 217, 218, 219, 220, 221, 222, 223, 224, 225, 226, 227, 228, 229, 230, 231, 232, 233, 234, 235, 236, 237, 238, 239, 240, 241, 242, 243, 244, 245, 246, 247, 248, 249, 250, 251, 252, 253, 254, 255, 256, 257, 258, 259, 260, 261, 262, 263, 264, 265, 266, 267, 268, 269, 270, 271, 272, 273, 274, 275, 276, 277, 278, 279, 280, 281, 282, 283, 284, 285, 286, 287, 288, 289, 290, 291, 292, 293, 294, 295, 296, 297, 298, 299, 300, 301, 302, 303, 304, 305, 306, 307, 308, 309, 310, 311, 312, 313, 314, 315, 316, 317, 318, 319, 320, 321, 322, 323, 324, 325, 326, 327, 328, 329, 330, 331, 332, 333, 334, 335, 336, 337, 338, 339, 340, 341, 342, 343, 344, 345, 346, 347, 348, 349, 350, 351, 352, 353, 354, 355, 356, 357, 358, 359, 360, 361, 362, 363, 364, 365, 366, 367, 368, 369, 370, 371, 372, 373, 374, 375, 376, 377, 378, 379, 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, 385, 386, 387, 388, 389, 390, 391, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 400, 401, 402, 403, 404, 405, 406, 407, 408, 409, 410, 411, 412, 413, 414, 415, 416, 417, 418, 419, 420, 421, 422, 423, 424, 425, 426, 427, 428, 429, 430, 431, 432, 433, 434, 435, 436, 437, 438, 439, 440, 441, 442, 443, 444, 445, 446, 447, 448, 449, 450, 451, 452, 453, 454, 455, 456, 457, 458, 459, 460, 461, 462, 463, 464, 465, 466, 467, 468, 469, 470, 471, 472, 473, 474, 475, 476, 477, 478, 479, 480, 481, 482, 483, 484, 485, 486, 487, 488, 489, 490, 491, 492, 493, 494, 495, 496, 497, 498, 499, 500, 501, 502, 503, 504, 505, 506, 507, 508, 509, 510, 511, 512, 513, 514, 515, 516, 517, 518, 519, 520, 521, 522, 523, 524, 525, 526, 527, 528, 529, 530, 531, 532, 533, 534, 535, 536, 537, 538, 539, 540, 541, 542, 543, 544, 545, 546, 547, 548, 549, 550, 551, 552, 553, 554, 555, 556, 557, 558, 559, 560, 561, 562, 563, 564, 565, 566, 567, 568, 569, 570, 571, 572, 573, 574, 575, 576, 577, 578, 579, 580, 581, 582, 583, 584, 585, 586, 587, 588, 589, 590, 591, 592, 593, 594, 595, 596, 597, 598, 599, 600, 601, 602, 603, 604, 605, 606, 607, 608, 609, 610, 611, 612, 613, 614, 615, 616, 617, 618, 619, 620, 621, 622, 623, 624, 625, 626, 627, 628, 629, 630, 631, 632, 633, 634, 635, 636, 637, 638, 639, 640, 641, 642, 643, 644, 645, 646, 647, 648, 649, 650, 651, 652, 653, 654, 655, 656, 657, 658, 659, 660, 661, 662, 663, 664, 665, 666, 667, 668, 669, 670, 671, 672, 673, 674, 675, 676, 677, 678, 679, 680, 681, 682, 683, 684, 685, 686, 687, 688, 689, 690, 691, 692, 693, 694, 695, 696, 697, 698, 699, 700, 701, 702, 703, 704, 705, 706, 707, 708, 709, 710, 711, 712, 713, 714, 715, 716, 717, 718, 719, 720, 721, 722, 723, 724, 725, 726, 727, 728, 729, 730, 731, 732, 733, 734, 735, 736, 737, 738, 739, 740, 741, 742, 743, 744, 745, 746, 747, 748, 749, 750, 751, 752, 753, 754, 755, 756, 757, 758, 759, 760, 761, 762, 763, 764, 765, 766, 767, 768, 769, 770, 771, 772, 773, 774, 775, 776, 777, 778, 779, 780, 781, 782, 783, 784, 785, 786, 787, 788, 789, 790, 791, 792, 793, 794, 795, 796, 797, 798, 799, 800, 801, 802, 803, 804, 805, 806, 807, 808, 809, 810, 811, 812, 813, 814, 815, 816, 817, 818, 819, 820, 821, 822, 823, 824, 825, 826, 827, 828, 829, 830, 831, 832, 833, 834, 835, 836, 837, 838, 839, 840, 841, 842, 843, 844, 845, 846, 847, 848, 849, 850, 851, 852, 853, 854, 855, 856, 857, 858, 859, 860, 861, 862, 863, 864, 865, 866, 867, 868, 869, 870, 871, 872, 873, 874, 875, 876, 877, 878, 879, 880, 881, 882, 883, 884, 885, 886, 887, 888, 889, 890, 891, 892, 893, 894, 895, 896, 897, 898, 899, 900, 901, 902, 903, 904, 905, 906, 907, 908, 909, 910, 911, 912, 913, 914, 915, 916, 917, 918, 919, 920, 921, 922, 923, 924, 925, 926, 927, 928, 929, 930, 931, 932, 933, 934, 935, 936, 937, 938, 939, 940, 941, 942, 943, 944, 945, 946, 947, 948, 949, 950, 951, 952, 953, 954, 955, 956, 957, 958, 959, 960, 961, 962, 963, 964, 965, 966, 967, 968, 969, 970, 971, 972, 973, 974, 975, 976, 977, 978, 979, 980, 981, 982, 983, 984, 985, 986, 987, 988, 989, 990, 991, 992, 993, 994, 995, 996, 997, 998, 999, 1000].

Thus, for example, Mr. Brooks, the representative of the trustee bank, who conducted the negotiation, in answer to the Court's questions, as follows [R. 98, 201, 336-337, 374-376, 484-485, 487-488, 490-491, 493-494, 496-497, 499-500, 502-503, 505-506, 508-509, 511-512, 514-515, 517-518, 520-521, 523-524, 526-527, 529-530, 532-533, 535-536, 538-539, 541-542, 544-545, 547-548, 550-551, 553-554, 556-557, 559-560, 562-563, 565-566, 568-569, 571-572, 574-575, 577-578, 580-581, 583-584, 586-587, 589-590, 592-593, 595-596, 598-599, 601-602, 604-605, 607-608, 610-611, 613-614, 616-617, 619-620, 622-623, 625-626, 628-629, 631-632, 634-635, 637-638, 640-641, 643-644, 646-647, 649-650, 652-653, 655-656, 658-659, 661-662, 664-665, 667-668, 670-671, 673-674, 676-677, 679-680, 682-683, 685-686, 688-689, 691-692, 694-695, 697-698, 700-701, 703-704, 706-707, 709-710, 712-713, 715-716, 718-719, 721-722, 724-725, 727-728, 730-731, 733-734, 736-737, 739-740, 742-743, 745-746, 748-749, 751-752, 754-755, 757-758, 760-761, 763-764, 766-767, 769-770, 772-773, 775-776, 778-779, 781-782, 784-785, 787-788, 790-791, 793-794, 796-797, 799-800, 802-803, 805-806, 808-809, 811-812, 814-815, 817-818, 820-821, 823-824, 826-827, 829-830, 832-833, 835-836, 838-839, 841-842, 844-845, 847-848, 850-851, 853-854, 856-857, 859-860, 862-863, 865-866, 868-869, 871-872, 874-875, 877-878, 880-881, 883-884, 886-887, 889-890, 892-893, 895-896, 898-899, 901-902, 904-905, 907-908, 910-911, 913-914, 916-917, 919-920, 922-923, 925-926, 928-929, 931-932, 934-935, 937-938, 940-941, 943-944, 946-947, 949-950, 952-953, 955-956, 958-959, 961-962, 964-965, 967-968, 970-971, 973-974, 976-977, 979-980, 982-983, 985-986, 988-989, 991-992, 994-995, 997-998, 1000].

"The Court: Was there any understanding at the time that you entered into this agreement that it was to be merely a partnership sort of a e Court: In other words, you understood that, ect to the limited rights you had in the partner- you were actually entering into this partnership, r as those particular trusts were concerned?

e Witness: That is correct.

e Court: And you were to derive whatever its came to the trusts?

e Witness: That is correct. In a fiduciary ity."

ord is quite clear that there was no understand- than the agreement executed by the parties in a, dealing at arm's length and using independent and carried out by them to the last letter. s no agreement between Mr. Toor and his chil- rding the disposition of the trust fund at the on of the trusts [R. 201] and it was not even that the bank was a party to any covert agreeadisputed and uncontradicted testimony of un- l persons may not arbitrarily be disregarded by finder. (Lawton v. Commissioner (6th Cir.), 380.)

ll hereinafter further point out in detail that in- concerns all of the indirect evidence from which of the parties may be inferred there is no evi- support a finding that the partnership here con- a sham, a subterfuge or a mere paper agree-

(2) Finding 16.

"Under the articles of partnership, plaintiff had full charge and control of the entire business, had full power and authority to do any act necessary or convenient with respect to the business."

This finding is not justified by the evidence. The evidence shows that as a general partner, Mr. Toor had full charge and control of the business for partnership purposes only. Likewise, he had full power and authority to do any act necessary or convenient with respect to the business only for partnership purposes. We shall hereinafter discuss the distinction between the power of management for personal purposes as compared with the power of management in a representative or fiduciary capacity for the benefit of others. In this case, the power was given for the benefit of the partnership of which the trusts were part owners. Such powers could not be exercised arbitrarily. As a matter of fact the powers given by the agreement were what a general partner would have had without the agreement.

(3) Findings 19 and 21.

"19. The creation of the limited partnership in this case did not in any way change the control of the business by the plaintiff exercised over the business."

"21. The control of the business income, the manner of its allocation, the salaries to be paid by the plaintiff and the employees, the amount paid for the rental of plaintiff's property, and the way the business was carried on—in brief, the d the domination of the plaintiff that, to all intents and purposes, the creation of the partnership was no change whatever in the manner in which the business had been conducted before."

These findings are also without support in the record. If the findings are basically similar, the same evidence was discussed in connection with both of them.

These findings first of all ignore the fact that the powers of a general partner in a limited partnership do not differ from that of an individual proprietor. The control exercised by Mr. Toor previously had as an individual proprietor was not limited by his fiduciary obligations as a partner, nor by the specific limitations prescribed by law (see Secs. 15410 and 15510 of the Corporations Code of California and the Appendix hereto). The limitations enunciated in the statute are not meaningless.

These findings also ignore the fact that the control exercised by Mr. Toor was given and exercised was simply that of a partner in an ordinary limited partnership. Findings when analyzed, merely amounts to a finding that the business was conducted as a limited partnership with Mr. Toor having the powers of management of a partner. There is nothing in this that could support the conclusion that the partnership was not a real one or that it was invalid for tax purposes, unless a limited partnership created with gift capital could not be recognized for tax purposes. As hereinafter pointed out, this is not the law. It is extremely significant that neither this finding nor any other finding states that Mr. Toor was

(c) These findings further ignore the difference between control primarily for his own benefit, and control exercisable for the benefit of others—in this case, the benefit of the partnership of which the trusts were third owners.

See:

Armstrong v. Commissioner (10th Cir., 1946),
F. 2d 700, and cases cited therein at p.

Greenberger v. Commissioner (7th Cir., 1946),
F. 2d 990;

Cf. Thomas v. Feldman (5th Cir., 1946),
2d 488, aff'd in Feldman v. Thomas, 34
R. 1631.

Whatever powers of management Mr. Toor had as a general partner, he could not exercise them for his personal advantage, but had to act for the benefit of the partnership with a proportionate part of the gains going to all the partners. He was neither the beneficial owner of the corpus nor the recipient of income therefrom.

(d) These findings further ignore the evidence that the business was at all times conducted as a true and bona fide partnership, which evidence also demonstrated that the parties truly intended to enter into the partnership as a bona fide business relationship.

(1) A written agreement was executed; a bona fide books were set up and properly kept according to business practice for a limited partnership, etc. [R. 60, 338-396, 439, 443]. As far as everyone was concerned, the business was operated as a partnership [R.

There is no evidence that Mr. Toor ever did any derogation of the agreement or of the rights of the other partners.

Accountings were regularly furnished the bank; equal distribution of profits were made; Mr. Toor consulted with the bank as to his compensation and kept the bank informed of the conduct of the business [R. 194, 364, 367, 339-353, 294].

Particularly significant was the conduct of the partnership in the handling of the renegotiation problem which arose with respect to sales made to the United States during the taxable years in question. A change in the Renegotiation Act of 1943 increased the amount of exemption from negotiation for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1943, of persons, firms or corporations whose taxable year ended after June 30, 1943. Since the partnership's taxable year ended June 30, 1943, it could not take advantage of this increased exemption. If the partnership was in effect, Mr. Toor could have taken advantage of the increased exemption since his taxable year ended June 31. When confronted with this problem, Mr.

resulted in the requirement that the partnership pay a substantial sum to the government.

(5) There was no mere paper allocation of income as indicated in the case of Commissioner v. Tower, 327 U.S. 280, 66 Sup. Ct. 532, 91 L. Ed. 670, 164 A. L. R. 101 (1946). There were no rebates or kickbacks from the partnership to the trusts, the partnership allocated to the trusts, none of it was for the benefit of the trustors nor was it available to them. The income was not used to help support the children (pp. 189). All distributions were made in proportion to ownership (pp. 339, 353). The full ownership of the partnership was invested in the partnership and the income therefrom was at all times in the trust. All benefits accruing to the trusts actually went into the trusts. In this regard the trial court commented as follows [R. 500]:

"I will say this for you: I intimated a prospective finding of fact on one point, and I will intimate to you another prospective finding of fact, which is to your advantage, and that is this: that the evidence shows clearly that the estate, the partnership, and the trusts respected at all times the rights and interests of the children, and at no time was there any attempt to deprive these children of the benefits coming to them."

The only thing that may appear in the evidence so far is the fact there may be undistributed income, which, of course, it is within the right of a partnership or corporation to distribute at a particular time. In that respect we do not have a paper organization. If it were paper it would have accumulated a great good money of the United States in the trusts of those children over this period of years.

(4) Finding 20.

the creation and the termination of the partnership subsequent to the taxable years were merely the act of the plaintiff."

There was no evidence to justify such a finding. The partnership was created by a valid and voluntary agreement between Mr. Toor and the Beverly Hills Bank and Trust Company, for a valuable consideration. The consent of each party was freely and voluntarily given not only to the creation but also to the continuation of the partnership. The bank investigated Mr. Toor and his business prior to becoming a limited partner and gave the matter the same consideration as it gave in making any other investment as a trustee in a trust [R. 336, 337, 374]. The terms of the trust agreement and partnership agreement were worked out by the parties, the bank requiring provisions therein favorable to it and refusing to accept the documents in the form as proposed originally by Mr. Toor's attorney. Mr. Toor had not dealt with the bank or even met its representatives prior to negotiating with them for the trusts and partnership. [R. 304, 286-287].

The bank was also consulted and its agreement was readily obtained for the termination of the partnership and the distribution of the assets and investment in the corporation which succeeded to the business of the partnership. The bank did not feel compelled to make the investment in the successor corporation, and considered the

"22. No instance appears where the Bank representatives used independent judgment suggested any action other than that proposed by the plaintiff. The trustee exercised none of the control of partnership even by way of advice.

"23. The trustee did not exercise dominant control over the trust corpus in the business and did not influence the conduct of the partnership or the disposition of its income."

Both of these findings are refuted by the same evidence. The evidence shows that the bank realized that it was actually entering into the partnership and that it was to derive whatever benefits came to the trusts from the operation of the business [R. 376]. After the formation of the partnership, Mr. Toor kept the bank informed of the conduct of the business and consulted with its officers from time to time [R. 194, 294]. The bank discussed with Mr. Toor the fixing of Mr. Toor's compensation [R. 290, 338, 364, 367].

The bank received the annual accountings, reviewed them and felt satisfied. [R. 194, 338, 368, 375-376]. The bank received its proportionate share of all dividends [R. 339-353].

It was recognized that under the limited partnership laws of the State of California, the limited partner could not be active in the management and control of the business. (California Corporations Code, Sec. 1550.) The bank recognized that it had rights under the investigation of the honesty, integrity and com-

f Mr. Toor, and certainly nothing thereafter that any further investigation was necessary.
felt, based upon the reports that it received,
ity of Mr. Toor and the obvious success of the
that the management of the business was in ls, that the trusts were getting everything due
none of their rights were in any way violated 368, 374-376]. This particular issue was sum-by the questions of the Court itself at the con-
the testimony of Mr. Brooks [R. 375-376]:

The Court: Just one question. At all times you felt and known that you have certain rights as ited partner, whether they are defined in the inment or whether they are defined by law?

The Witness: I did. We recognized that.

The Court: You recognized that?

The Witness: Yes.

The Court: You have not exercised those rights
use you have not felt called upon to exercise
?

The Witness: That is correct.

The Court: You felt all the time, in relation to business, the integrity of Mr. Toor, the reports received, that the management was in safe hands
nothing was going on that would warrant your king that the trusts were being deprived of what coming to them, or that any of the assets of the nership had been diverted to channels not auth-ed by the agreement or by law? Is that not
?

of any limited partner who was a stranger. unusual to have a limited partner with very little edge of the business. In this case, the business standingly successful, the limited partners were everything they were entitled to and it was obvious none of their rights were being violated. It was expected that the limited partner, even if a would attempt to impose his judgment on that of a general partner even by way of advice.

Even if the bank had done nothing, to say that it had not influenced the conduct of the partnership's disposition of its income is somewhat like saying that a contract does not influence the conduct of the parties because there are no breaches of the contract and is based thereon; it is also akin to saying that a contract does not influence or affect the actions of the parties to it because there are no violations and no privity therefor.

(6) Finding 24.

"The nature of the business was such that the plaintiff's personal services, business judgment and skill played an important role in the earning of the business income. But to the extent that capital played a part, because of his control over corpus and his retention of so many of the assets, the ownership of the trust corpus in his business by the plaintiff must still be considered to have contributed to the entire business income."

Mr. Toor's personal services were, of course, important to the business since he was the sole general ultation with the bank. There is no finding salary was unreasonable. With respect to this note the following:

Mr. Toor received as salary, $11,972.83 for the period from November 20, 1942 to June 30, 1943, $138.22 for the fiscal year 1944, and $20,579.47 for the fiscal year 1945. [Ex. O; R. 162, 393].

Mr. Toor and Mr. Brooks testified the salary was [R. 161-162, 290, 338].

For the years 1937-1940, Mr. Toor derived from the business an average annual earning of $14,164, which was his compensation for his personal efforts and [R. 339].

Mr. Toor testified that on that same percentage basis he probably would have made $25,000 per year for the years in question, had it not been for the nature of the work they were doing [R. 276-277].

Mr. Toor had previously managed another business as an employee with his compensation based on 3% of gross sales [R. 161]. Mr. Toor also testified he could have obtained a competent executive to perform his duties for the same rate of compensation [R. 339].

The salary was fixed in 1942 when the amounts paid to Mr. Toor by reason thereof were considered as compensation for such an executive in an ordinary commercial venture.

The business was not a one-man business, nor a was ten or eleven salesmen. In addition, there were hundred or more production workers plus several employees and office staff [R. 163]. There was a manager, Mr. Coyle, who was a sort of general manager in addition to supervising the office, he took care of great many things including purchasing and sales of sales when Mr. Toor was not there. There was also a production manager, Mr. Parker, who was in charge of production and production employees. There were also foremen in charge of each division of [R. 164].

Mr. Toor was away from Los Angeles frequently during this period on various trips. While he was away, Mr. Coyle and Mr. Parker operated the business [R. 165]. Mr. Coyle and Mr. Parker in salary and bonus earned $10,000 a year [R. 167]. Important decisions were generally arrived at after a conference with other executives [R. 290-291, 216-217, 238, 240].

The major income producing factor during the war was the organization, inventory and equipment of the partnership owned and paid for. This was particularly true during the war years when the increase in business and profits realized was due to purchases by the United States Navy. These purchases were the result of making acceptable bids and being able to meet the orders. The figures for the bids were worked out by Mr. Coyle and Mr. Parker although Mr. Toor would pass on them. Once the bids were accepted and orders received, it would be largely a production matter.

Upon analyzing this finding, we find that it is the conclusion as to the ultimate result reached. No finding as to the extent of control or that it was any greater than would be the case of a partner in a limited partnership with strangers. This finding thus uses the end result itself (the finding of the invalidity of the partnership) as the means of arriving at the result, and skips over the inquiry and necessary determination of the reality of the partnership to carry on as a partnership. Thus, this finding says: Although income must be taxed to the partner who earns it, we are going to disregard the fact that Mr. Toor was paid a reasonable salary for his services and to treat him with earning all of the income of the partnership business because the partnership is invalid for tax purposes; now, since Mr. Toor must be considered as earning all of the partnership business earnings, and since the income must be taxed to the partner who earns it, obviously the partnership is invalid for tax purposes. It is submitted that this is the only logical analysis of the finding. As has been pointed out, it is not the law that the control of the partnership must be exercised by a general partner in a limited partnership. Control is sufficient to render the partnership invalid for tax purposes or make the income chargeable to the partner merely because a family relationship ex-

See: Lamb v. Smith, 3rd Cir. 1950, 183 F. 2d 1038;

Greenberger v. Commissioner, 7th Cir. 1949, 177

Flandrick v. U. S. (Dist. Ct. So. Calif. 1951), cited in Prentice Hall Par. 725
Cf. Harris v. Commissioner, 9th Cir. 19-
2d 444 (rev'g 10 T. C. 818).

In this connection the Court in Greenberger v. sioner, supra, at p. 994 commented:

"It is true the court in Tower stated, 3 at page 289, 66 S. Ct. at page 537, 'The iss earned the income,' but the court also st issue depends on whether this husband really intended to carry on business as a pa If the partnership in the instant case was as we think it was, the income earned was t partnership and not that of petitioner. tioner undoubtedly was the predominating the conduct and management of the bus Commissioner overlooks the fact that the ship paid him a salary of $45,000 per annu each of the taxable years for his services t ered."

(7) Finding 25.

"The entire effect of the establishmen partnership was merely to permit the child plaintiff to receive a certain amount of t when the plaintiff determined that the in subject to distribution rather than diversio business determined by him."

This finding, as is indicated by its own lan merely a conclusion. It is respectfully submitted

up to in all respects; it disregards the fact that intended to form a partnership and carry on business as such, and that they did so; it disregards
that the control over the business and income
by Mr. Toor was different under the partnership as an individual proprietor; it disregards the
the income was not under the sole control of Mr.
it would be if he were the sole owner of the busi-
could only use it for business purposes which proportionately benefit the limited partners, and he distribute it unless proportionate distribution to the limited partners. Furthermore, though and amount of distribution of profits was at Mr.
discretion, this was not an arbitrary discretion, if discretion was exercised arbitrarily, the bank as a partner had an appropriate remedy in the courts
Limited Partnership Law.

Greenberger v. Commissioner, (7 Cir. 1949)
177 F. 2d 990, 993.

that the finding was intended to be limited to that Mr. Toor could determine the amounts and distributions of profits. Here again, we have provision which in no way would tend to sup-conclusion that the partnership was sham.

ained by Mr. Toor, there are times when the best plowed back into new equipment or exand there are other times when the profits can be d; certainly it is the management of the business
could determine, from the point of view of the

such as we have here, whether it be corporate or otherwise, to retain substantial reserves from profits for business purposes, the amount of which will vary from time to time, and which amounts are left to the discretion of such management. As a matter of fact, Mr. Toor explained that the provision was taken from a former limited partnership agreement that he was generally a partner at that time [R. 323].

We note that it was particularly important for the management to have the determination of how much of the profits to distribute. The business was in the process of expansion; due to war conditions inventories had been substantially reduced and reserves had to be set up to cover increased inventory requirements when normal times returned; large capital demands might be necessitated by sudden government orders, some of which could not be anticipated; that the ups and downs of the furniture business were considerably exaggerated by the uncertainty of war conditions. We note further that before the partnership was organized Mr. Toor had left much of the profits in the business, substantially restricting his drawings [R. 411, 416, 497].

Furthermore, Mr. Toor could not derive any benefit from allowing profits to remain in the business other than the gain he would share with the limited partners from the resulting benefits to the business. He could not use the funds for personal purposes and would have no motive for leaving the funds in the business.

benefit to the business in permitting profits to remain, it was to the advantage of the trusts that one rather than having the trusts invest these government securities at a much smaller rate. As pointed out by the Trial Court, the fact that the partnership did not accumulate idle funds was an indication that the partnership was not a paper organization.

(8) Finding 26.

The plaintiff and the trustee did not act with a business purpose in setting up the limited partnership.

The Trial Court misinterpreted "business purpose" as requiring a business benefit.

In the Culbertson opinion, the ultimate question to be decided in the family partnership cases was stated to be "whether the parties in good faith and acting with a business purpose intended to join together in the present and future of the enterprise." (Emphasis added.) The court, in this finding, has evidently accepted the plaintiff's contention that a business purpose, as thus defined, confers a benefit to the business. Such interpretation is erroneous. To thus interpret the phrase would be contrary to the substance of the Culbertson ruling, and would make one factor, the absence of a business purpose, conclusive. It is submitted that the words "business purpose" as used in the Culbertson opinion may logically be interpreted only as referring to the reality of the partnership, to carry on the basis as a partnership, and to share

Thus, in the case of Commissioner v. Tower, 328 U. S. 13, 280, 66 S. Ct. 532, 90 L. Ed. 670, 164 A. L. J. 101, the Court used these words:

“When the existence of a limited partnership is challenged by outsiders, the question arises whether the partners really and truly agreed to join together for the purpose of carrying on a business and sharing in the profits or losses of the business.” (Emphasis added.)

It was this statement which the Supreme Court in the Culbertson case, was reaffirming when it used the language in question.

Accordingly, in a subsequent portion of the Culbertson opinion, we find the following language (337 U. S. 1, 69 Sup. Ct. 1215):

“If, upon a consideration of all the facts, it appears that the partners joined together in good faith to conduct a business, having agreed that the partners should contribute or capital to be contributed presently by each partner such value to the partnership that the partners should participate in the distribution of profits, the partnership is sufficient.” (Emphasis added.)

This is the interpretation taken by the Appellate Court in applying the Culbertson decision. Thus, in Commissioner of Internal Revenue (6th Cir., 1940, 119 F. 2d 246, 254, it is stated:

“The test, of course, is not whether there is any obligation on the part of a business man to include his wife and children partners in his business.”

partnerships, cannot be recognized for tax purposes where there was no contribution of original capital. This is not the law.

Smith v. Smith (3rd Cir., 1950), 183 F. 2d 938;
Greenberger v. Commissioner, 177 F. 2d 990;
Theodore T. Stern, 15 T. C. 521;
Sam A. Morris v. Commissioner, 13 T. C. 1020; Andrick v. United States (Dist. Ct. So. Calif., May 15, 1951), cited in Prentice Hall, Par.
72515.

See also Harris v. Commissioner (9th Cir.), 175 (rev'g 10 T. C. 818), where the Circuit Court the Tax Court which had held a family partnership valid, the children contributing neither original nor services. The case was remanded for further action in conformity with the Culbertson case. If the benefit were a vital requirement, the Circuit
in that case could readily have affirmed the Tax

When properly interpreted, the evidence demonstrates the purpose in that there was a reality of intent to form the partnership and carry on the business as such.

) We have already commented upon the conduct of the business as a true partnership as indicating the reality of the intent of the parties. In addition, tributed to the trustee without any strings. Mr. Toor received a salary for his services; control was circumscribed by law and by his character as general partner; his relationship to the corpus of the trusts in the partnership and the income therefrom was changed—he could not touch it or avail himself of it for his own purposes.

(2) The prime moving purpose in the creation of the trusts was not a mere tax saving device. The prime initiating factor was the desire to make adequate, independent provision for the children as the result of Mr. Toor's domestic difficulties and the spendthrift habits of his wife. It was only incidentally that the trust invested in Mr. Toor's business, which was a successful one. Naturally, as the project progressed, the tax aspects were considered. The tax advantage which would accrue was certainly an unwelcome additional benefit to be derived from the plan. It is settled that the desire to reduce taxes will not defeat the validity of the trust so long as it is not entered into for the sole purpose of saving taxes.

Chisholm v. Commissioner, 79 F. 2d 14;
Ramsey v. Curry (Dist. Ct., Iowa), 88 F. 2d 967.

(3) Additional factors indicating the real intent of the parties:

(a) Mr. Toor had previously operated the business as a limited partnership in 1935 with his

tion of the partnership for a contribution of 10 plus a promise of $2500 more [R. 93, Ex. 1].

) Mr. Toor had previously made gifts to his ren and subsequent to the formation of the partnership continued to make substantial gifts [R. 190].

) In the creation of the partnership, Mr. Toor definitely depriving himself of that portion of income derived from the business which belonged to the trusts. This was a substantial practical deprivation in this case. Mr. Toor was a comparatively poor man; his future needs might be very substantial and not adequately taken care of by his earnings;
he was not a wealthy man, having severely restricted
the amount of his drawings and his manner of living such that he could let the profits ride and develop the business [R. 93, 96, 165]. He did not have adequate resources so that he could feel secure that he would
in the future need the corpus or income belonging to the trusts. Furthermore, the corpus and income of the trusts would go to the children when they became of age regardless of the situation that might develop between himself and the children during the interim. Thus, for example, he would have no way of preventing the children from turning back over to Mrs. Toor after they became of age [R.
165]. We note in addition that the partnership was created during the early part of the war when business conditions and future prospects were particularly uncertain. The government orders were about to

B. THE COURT ERRED IN FAILING TO PRESENT
ALL THE MATERIAL ISSUES PRESENT

The evidence as heretofore discussed in detail, that all the following facts should have been found by the Court. Each of these facts are material to the determination of the reality of the partnership without contradiction in the record:

(1) That the limited partnership agreement entered into in accordance with the laws of California and in accordance with the provisions of formal documents.

(2) That the trustee at all times after entering into the partnership agreement owned an interest in the business and exercised rights of ownership with respect thereto, including receipts of principal and income therefrom, the receipt and examination of the books and records of operation, and advising with the trustee as a partner.

(3) As a general partner, Herbert E. Bank was in full charge and control of the entire business of the partnership purposes only; the Bank was at all times entitled to exercise the attributes of ownership, including the rights of a limited partner with respect to the partnership business and its assets, and to receive a proportionate share of profits as fixed by the partnership agreement.

) That the business was at all times in question
ted as a limited partnership, and in accordance
the partnership agreement.

) That the contribution of capital played an rtant role in the earning of the business income;
the Bank contributed $20,000 in capital and ert E. Toor contributed $40,000 of the total al of $60,000; that the sharing of profits was proportion to the capital contribution.

) That in addition to his proportionate share of profits, Herbert E. Toor received a substantial
y for his services to the business, which salary not unreasonable.

) That the partnership effected a substantial ge in the economic relation of plaintiffs and their ren to the income in question.

) That Herbert E. Toor neither had the power
r ever made a distribution of profits to himself out making a proportionate distribution to the s.

) The partnership and all parties at all times cted the rights and interests of the trusts, and time was there any attempt to deprive the trusts
e children of the benefits coming to them. None
e parties ever did anything in derogation of the

(10) Once the partnership was established the benefits that could go into the trusts act into the trusts.

(11) Neither of the plaintiffs could or did from the income earned by and attributed to

(12) There was no understanding that and partnership agreements were not to be out in strict accordance with the provisions there is no evidence of bad faith on the part of the parties.

(13) The parties intended to join together on a business and share in the profits and partners.

(14) That the partners joined together with faith to conduct a business, having agreed capital to be contributed presently by each in value to the partnership that the contributors participate in the distribution of profits.

II.

r Application of the Principles, Governing Determination of the Validity of a Partner-
to the Facts Established by the Record,
ates That the Conclusion of the Trial Court
the Validity of the Partnership Is Contrary aw.

FOLLOWING PRINCIPLES OF LAW GOVERN DETERMINATION OF THE VALIDITY OF PARTNERSHIP IN THE INSTANT CASE.

Partnership Exists Under Commercial Law, It Exists
x Purposes—the Tests Are the Same. The Ultimate on Is Whether the Partnership Was a Sham or er There Was a Real Intent to Carry on the Busi-
s a Partnership.

Commissioner v. Tower (1946), 327 U. S. 280,
66 Sup. Ct. 532, 90 L. Ed. 670, 164 A. L. R.
1135;

Commissioner v. Culbertson (1949), 337 U. S.
733, 69 Sup. Ct. 1210, 93 L. Ed. 1659;

usburg v. Arnold (5th Cir., 1950), 185 F. 2d 913.

connection, we note particularly the following in the concurring opinion of Mr. Justice Frank-the Culbertson case (337 U. S. 753, 69 Sup. Ct.

seems to me important, therefore, to make a virtue that they have not for the sake of tax men and women may appear in a guise which the gimlet eye of the tax court is entitled to pierce. There should leave no doubt in the minds of the Taxpayers of the Courts of Appeals, of the Treasury Department, or the bar that the essential holding of the Tower case is that there is 'no reason' why the 'general rule' which the existence of a partnership is deemed to create 'should not apply in tax cases where the government challenges the existence of a partnership for the purposes.' "

In further referring to the Tower case, Mr. Justice Frankfurter also states (337 U. S. 750, 69 Sup. Ct. 1181):

"In short, the opinion did not say that family partnerships are not to be regarded as partnerships for income-tax purposes even though they be commercial partnerships; the opinion did not announce hobbling presumptions under the tax law against such partnerships."

It is submitted that the ordinary commercial presumptions of the validity of a partnership are clearly met in the instant case.

(2) There Is No Different Test to Be Applied in Testing the Validity of a Family Partnership Than That Applied in Testing the Validity of a Partnership With Strangers

As stated in the Culbertson case, the "existence of a family relationship does not create a status which determines tax questions, but is simply a war of words. Things may not be what they seem."

- (6) The Desire of a Parent to Provide for His C
a Lawful and Legitimate Motive for Creating T Partnerships.

Armstrong v. Commissioner (10th Cir.
143 F. 2d 700;

Thomas v. Feldman (5th Cir., 1946), 1
488.

- (7) The Desire to Reduce Taxes Will Not Defeat th
of a Transaction so Long as the Transaction Fide and Is Not Entered Into for the Sole Saving Taxes.

Chisholm v. Commissioner, 79 F. 2d 14.

B. OTHER FAMILY PARTNERSHIP CA

It would serve little purpose to review at l
many cases applying the principles set out in the son case. However, we respectfully invite the attention to the case of Greenberger v. Commissi Cir., 1949), 177 F. 2d 990. The facts in that comparable and the observations in the opinion
ticularly pertinent to the facts of the instant cas

In that case, the taxpayer was the main stock
a corporation which derived practically all of i from commissions earned on sales. Prior to th
years in question, the taxpayer made a valid gif
of the corporation stock to his wife, and later the
and his wife created irrevocable trusts for the

is formed with the taxpayer as general partner wife and the trusts as limited partners. Con-capital was $10,000. Profits for the years in ques-$139,000 and $140,000 respectively. The Com-attacked the validity of the partnership and the t found that no valid partnership existed for k purposes. The Seventh Circuit Court reversed Court and found that a valid partnership did

x Court had found that capital was not a mate-
e producing factor in the operation of the busi-
his respect, the Seventh Circuit Court observed
s true that the capital invested in the partnership pective parties was not large, but the point was had decided it was sufficient for the needs of ss in connection with the available income which rship had. The Tax Court had also found that nd the trustees did not perform any services for
ess. The Appellate Court observed that the of the lack of services and the fact that capital material income producing factor, indicated at or in emphasis, and that the predominant factor
ood faith and legitimate purpose of the parties
g the partnership.

respect to the government's contention that the
by the rendition of personal services, was re-

the business as a partnership. If the partner bona fide the income earned was that of the partner and not that of the taxpayer. The Appellate Court pointed out that while the taxpayer was undoubtedly the predominant force in the conduct and management of the business, the Commissioner had overlooked the fact that the partnership paid him a salary for his services rendered during the taxable years.

The Appellate Court also distinguished the T. H. Lusthaus decisions by pointing out that in those cases there was a mere paper allocation of income, while in the case in question, the parents retained no control or control over the property donated and the income from the trust property had been received and invested by the respective trustees in accordance with their trust agreements. It was also stated in this connection that the taxpayers could have successfully maintained a claim against the taxpayer to recover their part of the partnership income had he attempted to take or receive any of it for his own. Further, it was observed that a curious result would be presented if the taxpayer were required to account for and pay a tax upon income which he had no right to receive and which right existed solely and exclusively in the trusts. Accordingly it was held in support of the conclusion of the Tax Court that no valid partnership existed for federal income tax purposes was with

APPLICATION OF THE ABOVE STATED
PRINCIPLES OF LAW TO THE FOLLOWING CIR-CUMSTANCES IN THIS CASE WHICH ARE WITH-OUT CONTRADICTION IN THE RECORD, COM-ING TO THE CONCLUSION IN THIS CASE THAT THERE WAS A REAL INTENT TO CARRY ON THE BUSINESS AS A PARTNERSHIP.

Mr. Toor had operated the same business as a partnership with his father-in-law as a limited partner in 1935.

The prime motive for the trusts and the limited partnership was something other than tax saving; the purpose was to make effective provision for the children and for the possible benefit to Mr. and Mrs. Toor.

The bank and its personnel were strangers to Mr. Toor and dealt at arm's length with him, the bank made its own decisions based on its own investigations.
There is no evidence that the bank was a mere tool
of Mr. Toor.

The partnership agreement was properly executed
in all respects and to all intents and purposes was a valid partnership agreement in accordance with the law. The business was set up and conducted as a part-

The economic relation of the parties were changed when Mr. Toor's position as a general partner was substantially different from that of sole proprietor.

(b) Accountings had to be rendered.

(c) He was subject to the limitations and obligations imposed by law for limited partners, and the bank had corresponding rights and powers.

(d) Income earned in the business by the trusts irrevocably belonged to them, and Mr. Toor could not use it for personal purposes.

(e) Mr. Toor could not make a distribution of profits to himself without making a proportional distribution to the trusts.

(f) The business involved a risk of loss or gain, and losses would be shared in proportion to the extent of the capital investment; profits were not assured at that time.

(6) The business was conducted in accordance with the agreement, and Mr. Toor respected the responsibilities and obligations imposed upon him.

(7) Capital and the existing organization at the time were the major factors in the production of income. The trusts had paid for and owned their proportionate share therein. To the extent Mr. Toor's services were counted for income, he was specially compensated for such services by a reasonable salary in addition to his share of the profits. This salary was not found to be unreasonable and all of the evidence showed ly over what Mr. Toor had been making for y and profits for the years prior to the war; a executive could have been obtained to perform

functions for the same rate of compensation;
y was fixed in 1942 when, in an ordinary comnture, the amounts received by Mr. Toor would considered adequate compensation for a com-ecutive; the business ran without Mr. Toor bea good part of the time; the large profits were e result of the war years and having available
, equipment and organization for the production

e bank at all times observed its duties as trustee cted the interests of the trusts as limited part-

) The bank reviewed the reports received, was ied thereby, was satisfied as to the integrity and ct of Mr. Toor and was kept informed by him
the conduct of the business.

) The bank was at all times aware of its rights limited partner.

) There is no instance in the record where the
was lax in its duties or failed to take any ac-
that would normally be expected from a limited
er, if this were a partnership with strangers.

suspicion, interference, investigation, criticism for that matter, even the tendering of advice to a limited partner not experienced in the business.

(e) There is no evidence that the banks fully intend to live up to its duties as trustees to protect the interests of the limited partners.

(9) Once the partnership was established, the benefits that could go to the trusts actually went to the trusts. There were no rebates, kickbacks or anything of a mere paper allocation.

(10) Neither Mr. Toor nor Mrs. Toor could benefit from the income earned by the trusts. The income was used to satisfy their obligation or otherwise used for their benefit.

(11) There is no evidence in any respect of fraud on the part of any of the parties.

(12) The parties did join together in good faith to conduct the business, and agreed that the capital contributed by each was of such value to the partnership that the contributors should participate proportionately in the distribution of profits.

III.

tical Error in Omitting the Irrevocability
se From the Trust Instruments Did Not Rein Causing Income From the Partnership to Attributed to Mr. and Mrs. Toor or Justify Disregard of the Fiscal Year of the Partner-
for Tax Purposes.

st note that the argument under this point ase partnership is found to be valid. Furthermore,
e involved under this point of the argument is ated to the partnership for the fiscal year end-30, 1943.

A. THE FACTS.

vidence was without contradiction that it was intended by all parties concerned that the trusts
be irrevocable, and it was understood by the hereof that the Declarations of Trust so stated.
ssity that the trusts be irrevocable was discussed
and Mrs. Toor by their attorney, Max Fink, et with their approval. Mr. Toor was also spedvised by a certified public accountant to make irrevocable. The matter of irrevocability was ussed with the bank. The first drafts of the uments contained an irrevocability clause, and parties noted that clause in those drafts. The s went through several draft stages, and in the trust documents were executed with all of the trusts under the impression that they contained the irrevocable clause. [R. 99, 100, 113, 296-306, 320-323, Exs. 18 and 19].

That there was any question as to irrevocability was first discovered when the bank received a letter on September 29, 1943, from the State of California Department of the Controller's Office, pointing out that there was a inadvertent omission of the usual irrevocability clause. This letter was in reference to the gift tax returns submitted to the State of California with the trust instruments as supporting documents. The letter was submitted to Mr. Fink, who considered what action to take in order to correct the error, and consulted other attorneys. Reformation by lawsuit or by agreement was considered, and the latter course was finally chosen. [R. 336, 306-309, 324-326, 174-180, Exs. 20 and 21]. The instruments dated December 14, 1943, which were executed by the bank on January 13, 1944, it was corrected and confirmed by the trustees and by Mr. and Mrs. Fink that it was the original intention of the parties that the trust instruments be irrevocable and that the trust instruments were irrevocable [Ex. 14, R. 176-180].

The above facts are not in dispute. The only question is when the trusts should be deemed irrevocable.

INTENTION OF THE PARTIES ALWAYS THAT THE TRUSTS BE IRREVOCABLE AND TRUSTS SHOULD BE VIEWED ACCORD- Y. THE REFORMATORY INSTRUMENTS OF MBER 14, 1943, IN ANY EVENT, SHOULD BE IDERED TO BE RETROACTIVE TO THE C WHEN THE CLERICAL ERROR OCCURRED.

ne error was a mere inadvertent clerical one is spute. The documents were not the ones the tended to execute. The money was delivered nk and accepted by it irrevocably. This is not n such as was presented in Gaylord v. Commis- th Cir., 1946), 153 F. 2d 408, where the docu- the one the taxpayer intended to sign, but be- a mistake as to its legal effect, it failed to his later claimed "intention" and "desire."

role evidence rule, as well as special statutory n thereof has its well established exceptions rough mistake, accident or imperfection in the he written document does not contain the true ng of the parties.

California Code of Civil Procedure, Section 1856; California Civil Code, Section 1640.

t mentioned section provides that:

When, through fraud, mistake, or accident, a writ- ontract fails to express the real intention of the es, such intention is to be regarded, and the erro-

Contracts may be revised or reformed to reflect agreement of the parties, notwithstanding the States government is a party, and notwithstanding requirements of statute or the Statute of Frauds.

See:

Ackerlind v. United States, 240 U. S. 533.
Ct. 438, 60 L. Ed. 78, and cases cited

So, too, in tax cases a taxpayer is not conclusively bound for tax consequences by a written contract which is executed, where such contract does not reflect the actual situation.

See:

Arthur R. Jones Syndicate v. Commissioner
Cir., 1927), 23 F. 2d 833.

This right to correct a mistake applies to any defect in a written contract whether it is in reliance on common law or statutory requisite.

45 Am. Jur. 601;

22 Cal. Jur. 709.

A contract may be reformed by adding an omission.

Fresno Canal & Irrigation Co. v. Hart,
453, 92 Pac. 1010 (1907);

22 Cal. Jur. 715.

may reform it voluntarily as effectively as if the
on were decreed in an action in equity.

Am. Jur. 637;

A. L. R. 119.

instant case, reformation was not sought from court nor was an attempt made in any way to the action into one for reformation. Plaintiff that the true original intent should have been and in any event, the original instruments had been reformed by documents executed on Decem-1943. We did not assert that such contention or reformation would be conclusive on the govern-
the government was, of course, free to attack
ty of the statement of the true original intent
the reformatory instruments. This they did not pt to do. Whether the true original intent was d or whether the voluntary reformation accom-December 14, 1943, was valid and effective,
sue in this case and properly before the Court.
er of fact, this was the first opportunity for the
to litigate this question with the government.
ot necessary that a court reformation be first before the trial court in this case could recognize original intent or the effectiveness of the reforma-
ments. (See Civil Code, California, Sec. 1640.)
formation effected by the instruments should be

give the voluntary reformation the same effect decree, which would be a proper result. Upon the tion of an instrument, the rule is that it relates and takes effect from the time of its original especially as between the parties thereto and a tors at large and purchasers with notice.

45 Am. Jur. 591.

Certainly, the government cannot assert that prejudice or injury would result to it from accord active effect to the correction of the clerical error respect, the government is not in the position fide purchaser for value who has acquired rights of the parties to the instrument sought to be ref

Cf. Baines v. Zuibeck (1948), 84 Cal 483, 191 P. 2d 67.

The government was never misled on account mistake in the slightest degree. On the contrary information the government received would be tax returns filed shortly after the creation of and by these returns the government was notified trusts were irrevocable (pp. 332-333).

If Mr. Toor, prior to December 14, 1943, covered the error and attempted to revoke the would have been the bank's duty as trustee to revocation, to sue for reformation and reformation have been granted. It cannot be assumed that would not perform its duties as trustee. In Mr. and Mrs. Toor did not have the actual power to revoke the trusts and this further distinguishes the

IF NOT GIVEN RETROACTIVE EFFECT, CORRECTION OF THE CLERICAL ERROR ACCOMPLISHED ON DECEMBER 14, 1943, EARLIER THAN ON JANUARY 13, 1944, AS FOUND BY THE COURT. THIS CORRECTION WAS ACCOMPLISHED WITHIN THE CALENDAR TAX-YEAR OF MR. AND MRS. TOOR AND OF THE TRUSTS AND PRIOR TO THE TIME THE GOVERNMENT'S RIGHTS HAD ACCRUED.

Ex. 14 was as follows [R. 70]:

"The trust instruments contain no statement that they were not revocable by the grantors. It was not until January 13, 1944, that there were executed amendments to the trust instruments which stated that they were not so revocable."

Ex. 14 is definitely without support in the evidence. The only evidence is in the instruments themselves which state that they were executed on the date of December 14, 1943 [Ex. 14; R. 177, 179]. The fact that the officers of the bank acknowledged their signatures on a later date is in no way contradictory of this and does not support the Court's finding. As a matter of course, acknowledgment was not even required for the amendments to be effective.

Under the Federal income tax laws, profits accruing to a partnership during its fiscal year are not distributable to the members of such partnership until the last day of the fiscal year of the partnership, at which time they are determined or become ascertainable.

in the case of an individual . . .” Section provides in part that “the net income shall be computed on the basis of the taxpayer’s annual accounting (or calendar year as the case may be) . . .” In 1918, each partner, in computing his net income, was required to include his distributive share of the net income of the partnership, as computed by the partnership under Section 183.

The fiscal year of the partnership ended on June 30 each year, the first fiscal year ending June 30, 1918, and Mrs. Toor and the trusts were each on a calendar year basis. Under these circumstances, Section 1361 of the Internal Revenue Code becomes applicable, and this section provides:

“If the taxable year of a partner is different from that of the partnership, the inclusions with respect to the net income of the partnership, in computing the net income of the partner for his taxable year, shall be based upon the net income of the partnership for any taxable year of the partnership beginning on, before, or after January 1, 1913, and ending within or with the taxable year of the partner.”

Accordingly, any net income accruing to the partnership during the first fiscal year, would not have been includable as income in the returns of the partners for the calendar year 1942, but would necessarily have been included as income in their calendar taxable year ending December 31, 1943.

Section 166 of the Internal Revenue Code pro-

166 is an exception to the general rule that in-taxable to the recipient, and said section must be onstrued.

erton's Law of Federal Taxation, Vol. 6, p. 410.

ute does not provide that the trust as an entity
disregarded, nor does it require that a partner-which such trust might be a member, must be
d. The trust as well as the partnership are ve, and the fiscal year adopted by the partner-be recognized. In this connection see Hash v.
oner (1945), 4 T. C. 878 (aff'd. 4th Cir., 152
2), wherein the Court refused to permit the oner to disregard the fiscal years set up by the
p agreements to which the trustees were parties, nding that the taxpayers were chargeable with
k on the income from the trusts.

Mr. and Mrs. Toor were on a calendar basis, and the trusts were held revocable, the income accru-
the partnership to the trusts at the close of the p fiscal year ending June 30, 1943, would have included by them in computing their net in-the calendar year ending December 31, 1943.
the rights of the government from a tax lia-
point did not accrue until the close of the taxa-
to wit, December 31, 1943, and since the cor-
the clerical error was accomplished on Decem-
the government is not entitled to complain of tion of such clerical error: Mr. and Mrs. Toor

The right to make corrections and adjustments to the close of a taxable year has been clearly established by numerous decisions.

Huntington-Redondo Company v. Commissioner, 36 B. T. A. 116; (1937), 36 B. T. A. 116;

Albert W. Russell v. Commissioner, 35 B. T. A. 602.

D. THE SAME GOVERNMENT ACCEPTED NEE'S RETURN MADE SHORTLY AFTER CREATION OF THE TRUSTS ON AN IRREVOCABLE BASIS; THE SAME GOVERNMENT RENEGOTIATING WAR CONTRACTS, DEBITED AND RECEIVED SOME $60,000 BASED ON RECOGNITION OF THE PARTNERSHIP'S FISCAL YEAR WHICH COULD NOT OTHERWISE HAVE BEEN ASSESSED OR COLLECTED.

1. Shortly after the creation of the trusts, gift tax returns were filed and accepted by the government on an irrevocable basis [R. 332-334].

2. As heretofore pointed out, a change in the exemption law increased the amount of exemption available to individuals, partnerships, firms or corporations with a taxable year ended after June 30, 1943. Since the partnership's fiscal year ended June 30, 1943, it could take advantage of this increased exemption. If the partnership were not in effect, Mr. Toor could have taken advantage of this increased exemption. By recognizing the partnership and its fiscal year, the government was able to renegotiate government contracts of the regarding discussion has been directed to the income accruing from the partnership at the close of the year ending June 30, 1943. The income accruing in 1940, 1944, for the previous fiscal year, and on June 30, 1945, for the previous fiscal year, of course, accrued to the trusts after the trusts had unquestionably become irrevocable. Such income would thus not be taxable to Mr. and Mrs. Toor in any event.

Conclusion.

In due respect to the learned Trial Court, it is submitted that the decision in the instant case violates the cardinal precept of income tax law, that income shall be taxed to he who earns it. This principle is broken by the court in two further basic principles, one, that income is attributable to the owner of the property, and two, that income from personal services is attributable to the person rendering the services. There is no reason for applying different principles to partnerships. If an individual makes a bona fide gift of property or of a share of capital stock, the rent or income is taxable to the donee. Similarly, however, if an owner of a partnership interest may have acquired such interest, the income is taxable to him for he is the owner.

In the instant case, the personal services of Mr. Toor were compensated for by a reasonable salary. The balance of the income from the business was earned by the trusts and the trusts were each a one-sixth owner of first place, the situation is like that of a father up a trust for his son by way of gift, and the trust purchases real property. If the gift is father is not taxed on the income even if he ac the property for the benefit of the child. In t place, the control of Mr. Toor was no more th a general partner in an ordinary limited pa Furthermore, in weighing the effect of the re power upon the bona fides of a purported gift o power exercisable for the benefit of others mu tingished from the power vested in a transfer own benefit. To hold that the extent of contro business in the instant case was such as to ch Toor with earning the entire income therefrom i tical effect to rule that a family limited part invalid for tax purposes where original capital i tributed by the limited partners. The Trial C has taken a limited partnership, otherwise valid effect, ruled it invalid for tax purposes becau existence of a family relationship.

In this case, there is no question as to the r bona fides of the gift to the trusts. The trust and beneficially acquired an ownership in the b the investment of a proportionate amount of cap in, regardless of the fact that the capital orig way of gift. There was no evidence of bad fa soever and all of the evidence pointed to the g of the parties. There was no substantial eviden otherwise than that the parties joined together faith to conduct a business, having agreed that mitted that the decision of the Trial Court has a result whereby the taxpayer is required to pay a tax upon income which he had no right to receive, enjoy, or benefit from, but which right was exclusively in the trusts. By a ruling and findings which indicate "at best an error in emphasis," the Trial Court has judicially legislated the family partnership formed with gift capital into a trust. In this case, it is clear that Mr. Toor intended to make his particular gift to the trusts to $21,000; instead, he would be forced by this decision to pay in addition $200,000, without receiving or being entitled to any income upon which it is based. Under all the circumstances, this result is unjust and contrary to law.

The decision of the Trial Court should therefore be reversed insofar as it concerns the ruling that the partnership was not valid for tax purposes. It should further be held that the trusts should be considered irrevocable from their inception, that the fiscal year of the partnership should not have been disregarded and that the income contributed to the trusts from their partnership income was erroneously attributed to Mr. and Mrs. Toor for the years in question.

Respectfully submitted,

FINK, ROLSTON, LEVINTHAL & KENT,
LEO V. SILVERSTEIN,
SCHWARTZ, GALE & BLOOM,

Attorneys for Appellants.

APPENDIX.

ations Code of California:

5509. RIGHTS, POWERS AND LIABILITIES OF A PARTNER. (1) A general partner shall have rights and powers and be subject to all the rights and liabilities of a partner in a partnership limited partners, except that without the written ratification of the specific act by all the limited a general partner or all of the general partners authority to:

to any act in contravention of the certificate.

to any act which would make it impossible to the ordinary business of the partnership.

to confess a judgment against the partnership.

to possess partnership property, or assign their rights in partnership property, for other than a partnership purpose.

to admit a person as a general partner.

to admit a person as a limited partner, unless the right so to do is given in the certificate.

to continue the business with partnership property in the event of the death, retirement or insanity of a general partner, unless the right so to do is given in the certificate.

5510. RIGHTS OF LIMITED PARTNER. (1) A limited partner shall have the same rights as a general partner, except that he shall not have the right to

to have the partnership books kept at the principal place of business of the partnership.

partnership affairs whenever circumstances render it just and reasonable; and

(c) Have dissolution and winding up by court.

(2) A limited partner shall have the right to a share of the profits or other compensation based on his income, and to the return of his contribution as provided in Sections 15515 and 15516.

Sec. 15523. DISTRIBUTION OF ASSETS. (1) After settling accounts after dissolution the liabilities of the partnership shall be entitled to payment in the following order:

(a) Those to creditors, in the order of priority provided by law, except those to limited partners on account of their contributions, and to general partners on account of their contributions.

(b) Those to limited partners in respect to their share of the profits and other compensation by way of return on their contributions.

(c) Those to limited partners in respect to their share of their contributions.

(d) Those to general partners other than limited partners on account of profits.

(e) Those to general partners in respect to their share of their contributions.

(f) Those to general partners in respect to their share of their contributions.

(2) Subject to any statement in the certificate of partnership or subsequent agreement, limited partners share in the partnership assets in respect to their claims for contribution in respect to their claims for profits or for compensation.